State Socialism
Wise General Elect
Come, See Me Die
Tamerlane's Skulls

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

OTTO H KAHN says truly, 'An amusing incident in politics is a complete misunderstanding of President Hoover's statement that the Republican program is a program of government socialism.'

Democrats accuse Hoover of calling Governor Smith a Socialist. And Governor Smith repels the accusation indignantly.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Hoover made no reference to socialism as generally understood. He referred in plain words to 'state socialism,' established by Bismarck to combat real socialism.

Mr Hoover compared the Democratic program of paternalism to the 'state socialism' that puts unemployed men on the dole' in England, and that Bismarck devised to fight real socialism."

NEVERTHELESS, a large percentage of Democrats will always believe that Hoover called Smith a Socialist. It is not sufficient to use terms correctly, you must foresee how others will interpret them.

MR SWOPE and his General Electric Co apparently made a better deal with Russia recently than was supposed. Russia bought $25,000,000 worth of electrical equipment from the General Electric, and Russia arranged with the General Electric to include a sum sufficient to make up for General Electric properties confiscated by bolshevism.

Berlin says it is a convenient way to settle the General Electric claims without "establishing a precedent."

Swope probably doesn't care how it is done.

IN Huntsville, Texas, 'Bo' Silver invited his friends to see him "sit down in the chair."

At the last minute Governor Moody commuted his sentence to life imprisonment.

"Bo" remarked, "My friends sure missed a wonderful party."

MEN sentenced to death frequently issue invitations for their last appearance. Carlisle Harris, a young medical student, who murdered his wife, requested a newspaper acquaintance to see him die and tell his mother all about it.

WHEN TAMERLANE ruled in Asia, he had a habit, after taking a city, of cutting off heads of soldiers and other inhabitants and building them into pyramids. When they dried into skulls, he had them lighted up from the inside as a warning to his enemies.

BOOTLEG whisky builds its pyramids of ruffians, not skulls. In New York yesterday 18 miserable victims of bootleg poison whisky, each in a pine box, were piled up on the dock of the municipal ferryboat Colonel Clayton, bound for potter's field. There they rest, a warning to those that will not be warned.

FROM the Atlantic to the Pacific the airplane 'Yankee Doodle' flies in 24 hours, 01 minutes. If a light airplane can do that now, how long will it take fully developed planes to cross this continent? Those living will cross in six hours and less. Railroads operating transcontinental passenger lines, take notice.

IN the past three months General Motors has earned $70,200,639. In nine months that gigantic company has earned $240,531,618, more in nine months than in any 12 months previous.

SOME time ago, before General Motors made its gigantic stock distribution, a speculator sitting in a broker's office on the third floor of New York's Ritz tower was heard to say repeatedly, "Sell a thousand General Motors at 125."

THIS writer said then to the owner of the Ritz tower broker's office: That customer of yours will pay a nice profit to somebody when he buys that stock back."

A GERMAN convict, Edgar Hedge showed extraordinary powers of endurance and desperate courage before being shot to death in a room where he had taken refuge.

He continued doggedly fighting policemen, protected by steel shields, until he sank to the floor, a dozen bullets in his body. He wrote to his mother 'Goodby. I shall see you in Heaven for, although I was a murderer, I am not bad.'

MODERN PLAN IMPOSSIBLE IN SCHOOLS HERE

Lack of Building Facilities Disrupts Organization System

SERIOUS HANDICAP

Teachers and Executives Forced To Abandon Best Method of Operation

Editor's Note—It is extremely important that every voter know all the facts in the school situation before casting his ballot either for or against the school bond issue a week from Tuesday. After a careful study of the conditions and the program for expansion of the school facilities, The Star is entirely satisfied that the bond issue is an absolute necessity. With this in mind, we present herewith the third of a series of articles intended to acquaint the citizenship with these facts, that they may know whether their positive or negative vote is fair to themselves, as taxpayers, to the city as a business proposition, and to the children—our children—as the future citizens of this community. Certainly it would not be forced to vote against this issue now on the ground of 'keeping taxes down' if that vote a year or two from now is certain to cost the taxpayers more money. We urge you to read this and the succeeding articles and vote according to your best judgment.

No important enterprise can progress satisfactorily nor serve to the best advantage without organization effected and maintained in accordance with the most modern system.

Never in the history of the nation has competition in all lines been keener nor efficiency at a higher standard than at the present time.

Since education is the basis of practically all human endeavor and starts with the earliest training of the boys and girls who are to be leaders of affairs in the future, it is plain to be seen that the public school system must function absolutely to the best possible advantage.

Is Marion now providing its boys and girls with the educational facilities to which they are entitled and which will equip them with the training enabling them to step out into the world on an even footing with their competitors in business and professional life?

If they are getting this training, it is coming to them chiefly because the city has unusually competent and conscientious teachers and school executives able to render effective service despite handicaps.

Modern Advancement

Just as organization methods have been changed and improved in business and industry, so has advancement been

REGISTRATION SET HERE FOR NOV. 5

Arrangements Made for Voters Presenting Special Permits

One more chance is to be given Marion voters to register before the November election.

However, to be eligible to take advantage of this chance, one must have an iron bound excuse, ill or out of the city, on Oct 4, 11, 19 and 29.

To register the voter must obtain an order from the county board of elections. If the order is presented to the registration officials at the voter's precinct between the hours of 4 and 8 on Nov. 5, the Monday preceding the election, the voter will be made eligible to vote on Nov 6.

At a meeting next Monday night, Oct 29 the board of elections will set a time for issuing orders for late registration. The time set will be announced by the board after the meeting.

Besides taking late registrations on Nov 5 the polls will be open to give voters who have moved from one precinct to another since registering this fall an opportunity to transfer to their new precinct.

HOOVER PLANS FARM SESSION IF ELECTED

G. O. P. Nominee Announces He Would Call Special Session of Congress

Washington Oct 27—Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential candidate, announced today he would, if elected, call a special session of congress next spring to enact farm relief legislation if a satisfactory bill fails of passage at the coming short session.

He described the agricultural situation as the most urgent economic problem confronting the nation today.

Hoover's position was outlined in the following statement:

"The question of a special session of congress after March 4 in the event of return of the Republican party has been under discussion for some time. There are a number of questions, particularly agriculture relief, which urgently require solution and should not be delayed for a whole year. It is our most urgent economic problem.

"I should hope it can be dealt with at the regular session this fall and thus a special session be avoided. If, however, that cannot be accomplished, I would, if elected, not allow the matter to drift and would of necessity call an extra session so as to secure early constructive action."

GRAND JURY URGES BOARD BE OUSTED

Cleveland Political Circles Anxiously Await Action of Secretary Brown

Cleveland, Oct. 27—Political circles here today were awaiting the next move by Attorney General Edward C Turner and his special grand jury, for the last six weeks an investigation into alleged irregularities and frauds in past elections has been under way here.

Yesterday the grand jury returned a partial report, recommending that A J Hirshler, clerk of the election board Chief Deputy Clerk Stephen A. McNeil and all members of the board, except Mrs Bernice Pyke, be ousted, the grand jury charged that the election board had been guilty of "malfeasance of duty."

The only official who has authority to dismiss an election board, according to Ohio law, is the secretary of state. Accordingly, Turner mailed a copy of the preliminary report to Secretary of State Clarence J Brown yesterday.

"If I gave him so much evidence it will be impossible for him not to dismiss the election board and clerks," Turner asserted.

Cornell Students Arrive at Princeton For Game

Princeton N. J., Oct. 27—This college town which has seen practically everything in freakish methods of transportation, from high-wheeled bicycles to airplanes, rubbed its eyes this morning. Eight Cornell students arrived here in a 1927 vintage hearse to witness the Cornell-Princeton game. The boys picked up the hearse at an auction and outfitted the back with seats. While one drove, the other seven did their best to sleep in the back. If Cornell wins the boys will bequeath the rig to Princeton as a consolance for the Tiger.

MILK STRIKE

Threatens to Cut Off Half of Chicago's Supply

Chicago, Oct. 27 — An impending milk strike among more than 7,500 farmers today threatens to cut off half of Chicago's milk supply.

SCORES ESCAPE WHEN SPECIAL TRAIN CRASHES

Wabash Special Rams Rear End of Freight at Helmer, Ind.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 27—An eastbound Wabash special football passenger train carrying scores of University of Wisconsin rooters to Ann Arbor, Mich., for the annual Wisconsin-Michigan football game this afternoon narrowly escaped disaster at Helmer, Ind., 12 miles north east of here early today when the train rammed the rear end of a freight train that was pulling up to a siding.

The accident occurred on a curve while the football special was traveling 35 miles an hour. The engineer, A McAdaney of Montpelier, Ohio, slammed on the brakes and stuck to his post. His fireman, C. R. Gay born, also of Montpelier, jumped and was painfully injured.

Several students were shaken up but none was seriously hurt.

The caboose of the freight train and two freight cars were destroyed by fire starting from the stove in the caboose after the wreck.

An engine from Wolcottville, Ind pulled the undamaged passenger coaches to Kendallville. The students seemed to have enjoyed their experience for they were singing and yelling when the train reached here.

First reports reaching here stated the train carried members of the Wisconsin football team. This report was based on the fact that the train was a football special.

MRS. WALDMAN IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Mother of Children Killed in Fall in Complete Collapse

New York, Oct 27—Mrs Milton S. Waldman, Guggenheim heiress and mother of the two babies who plunged to death from the roof of the 16 story hotel Surrey, was today reported to be in a state of complete collapse.

She lies in Park West hospital, shattered of nerve and overwhelmed by grief.

Extra precautions have been taken to see that she is not disturbed. She has been attended by four nurses, by two eminent neurologists and by Dr Newton B. Waller, the Guggenheim family physician.

In view of her condition the authorities have been reluctant to press their investigation of the tragedy. Mrs Waldman's condition took a turn for the worse after she had been visited by Chief Medical Examiner Charles Norris who obtained a statement from her.

"I believe she is in a state of mind where she could readily commit some rash act," said Dr. Norris, adding, that as far as he is concerned the case is closed.

"I am more than satisfied that the children died as a result of an accident," he declared.

WOMEN OPEN G.O.P. RALLY PROGRAM HERE

300 Hear Fess and Mouser at District Meeting This Afternoon

MRS. COOPER PRESENT

Rally Tonight, with Party Leaders on Program, To Close Day's Events

Nearly 300 Republican women of the Eighth Congressional district, comprising Marion, Morrow, Crawford, Wyandot, Hardin and Hancock counties, were here today for a rally and luncheon at the Hotel Harding.

Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican candidate for reelection to the United States senate, and Grant E. Mouser, Jr., Republican candidate for congress from this district, were the speakers. Mrs. Myers Y. Cooper, wife of the Republican gubernatorial candidate, spoke briefly.

The meeting this afternoon, which was held in the ballroom of the hotel, followed a luncheon in the dining room. Miss Gertrude Jones, state committeewoman from this district, was in charge.

Rally Tonight

Tonight Republicans plan an open meeting that is expected to fill The Star auditorium. The rally will start at 8 o'clock and will be preceded by a band concert.

Myers Y. Cooper, candidate for governor, Grant E. Mouser, Jr., and Mrs. Wilma Sinclair LeVan, of Steubenville, state committeewoman, will be the speakers.

Word received this morning advised Republican headquarters that Gilbert Bettman, candidate for attorney general, would be unable to attend the afternoon luncheon and meeting. Bettman was scheduled to share the floor with Mouser and Fess.

Tonight, from 7 to 8 o'clock, a public reception will be held at Hotel Harding to give local citizens an opportunity to meet Mr. Cooper and Mrs. LeVan.

Fess Speech

The address of Senator Fess at this afternoon's meeting follows, in part:

"The Kellogg peace treaties are the greatest steps towards world peace yet taken.

"These treaties, of which more than 50 nations have either signed or signified their intention of signing won't prevent war, but they form the longest step forward toward the time when arbitration shall be substituted for armed action, ever taken.

"These treaties have brought about results that could not be obtained at other conferences. France blocked effective results at the disarmament conference in Washington in 1921. England blocked another, while Japan's objections nullified a third.

"Now they have all signed the Kellog peace treaties, which pledge them to arbitration, before declaring war. This is the greatest step toward real world peace that has ever been taken.

"The United States has felt that its position as the richest and greatest nation on earth entitles it to first representation on the seas and the result has been a constant race with Great Britain. Battleships were succeeded by dreadnaughts and dreadnaughts by super dreadnaughts until it was hard to see where the end would be.

"In the meantime the United States cut its army to 135,000 men and 12,000 officers. France with only a third of our population has an army

POWER PLANT ADDITION TO COST $400,000

C., D. & M. Starts on Enlargement of Scioto Building and Equipment

Excavation work for the foundation of a $400,000 addition to the Scioto power plant of the C., D. & M. Electric Co is now under way at the plant near Newman's.

Work will be completed some time within the next 12 months so that the addition will be ready for operation next winter, A. P. Van Deinse, president and general manager of the company, said today.

The addition will be larger than the original building, which was completed in June, 1921, Van Deinse states. It will house two boilers capable of developing 9,000 horsepower. The power plant now has four boilers.

The addition will be 72 feet long, about two-thirds the length of the present plant, and will be approximately 140 feet in height. The turbine and the switchboard rooms are also being enlarged and four new feeder switches will be installed.

This is the fourth plant enlargement made by the C., D. & M. since June, 1921. The first addition was a 7,500 kilowatt turbine. Later, another boiler was added to the original three. Still later a 15,000 kilowatt turbine was installed.

The maximum of the present addition will be understood when it is realized that the C., D. & M. expects to use approximately 1,000 tons of sand and gravel in the construction work.

BEST SCHOOL PLAN IMPOSSIBLE HERE

Lack of Building Facilities Disrupts Organization System

made in school organization. Schools of different communities are in a sense competitors just as busin ss enterprises are competitors.

In this competition Marion schools are handicapped through barriers which prevent the most efficient organization. These barriers can be removed only by additional building accommodations for proper distribution of pupils.

The most effective type of school organization, the one which is generally recognized and in force throughout the country, is known as the 6-3-3 plan. In the operation of this system, elementary schools include the first six grades, junior high schools the next three, and senior high schools the last three classes of public school pupils.

This plan can be worked out effectively only when there are separate buildings for each of the three divisions.

No school system can be recognized as thoroughly up to date and efficient according to modern standards unless this 6-3-3 organization is maintained. Proved to Advantages Plan.

It has been established in most progressive schools of the country in the last two decades. Marion started it but was unable to keep it up because of inadequate building space and equipment.

Instead of having this one definite and scientific plan in effect, Marion must struggle along with a mixture of both separate types of organization forcing teachers and school executives to shoulder tremendous burdens and difficulties in effectively educating the city's young people.

The junior high school is the central and pivotal unit of the 6-3-3 system. Prior to establishment of this new unit in public school organization here the old time 8-4 plan was in effect here and in the majority of other American communities. Under this plan there were eight elementary grades and four high school classes. Experience has shown that the new 6-3-3 system is far superior to the old. But now Marion has neither the 8-4 nor the 6-3-3.

It was about seven years ago that local school authorities started the first junior high school here. For a time it appeared that the plan could be worked out successfully but enrollment increased so rapidly that the available building accommodations were outgrown and shifting of pupils from one building to another became necessary gradually disrupting the efficient 6-3-3 system.

At the present time practically rather

Governmental Economy

Sound government finance is a necessary element of prosperity. To fully appreciate the present sound condition of American governmental finance and the great strides toward our present condition, it is necessary to understand that at the beginning of the republican administration seven years ago, the country's economic condition was at such a low ebb as to amount to a dangerous crisis.

Business derangement extended to all industries to agriculture to transportation to banking, to manufacturers to building and to general to the whole country. This brought on pressure for the adoption of unsound radical remedies such as government control of price levels government dolles to industries subsidy of house building lower freight rates without removing the cost of operation, elaborate plans of public improvement to make jobs for the unemployed and unsound measures for the relief of agriculture.

The war had absorbed the liquid assets of the fiscal agencies banking was difficult industries were starved for want of capital business enterprise was paralyzed labor had been forced out into the streets and in at there existed a crisis in not only our financial institutions but the very government itself was in a state of jeopardy.

Wise administrative management under Republican control has made possible a reduction of over a billion eight hundred million dollars a year in the tax bill of the American people. Four separate tax reductions have been made and millions of those people least able to pay have been taken from the tax rolls.

In seven years the public debt has been reduced by $8 511 000 000 and there has been effected a saving of interest charges of not less than $1 275 000 000 without which the most recent tax reduction measure could not have been possible.

Industry

'Under the leadership summoned to action at the beginning of the Republican administration seven and one half years ago industry in the United States has risen from the mire of economic prostration to a standard never before experienced in the history of the nation.

'Through regulation of production within the demands of consumption on the one hand and the organization of labor on the other prices are stabilized on a high level.

'It is the ambition of the Republican party to continue the present conditions in industry and to do everything humanly possible to banish unstable conditions in business.

Labor

'Deposits in the savings banks of America today amounts to more than seven times the total capital of the national and state banks and the trust companies of the nation combined. We are now enjoying the longest period of sustained prosperity in the nation's history.

The Republican party stands today as it always has for a continuance of tariff to prevent the flooding of the country with goods from other countries and assuring the continuance of the good business conditions which have made this prosperity possible.

'American homes send one third more children to the public schools and ten times more to college than the next greatest nation. The best leadership in every industry has been mobilized to coordinate America in a campaign to lift it from the mire of economic prostration to the plane of living comparable with our social ideals.

Agricultural Relief

'The farm people of Ohio are educated in the affairs of agriculture as a national problem to the extent that they are well able to distinguish between sound and unsound policies for the relief of farm depression which has beset rural America since the World war upset the economic status of agriculture seven years ago.

Farm people will not be misled into believing that their problem is a political one. It is not it is an economic problem. To insist that the laws of economics can be changed by legislation is but an attempt to mislead the farmer into unsound theories.

While legislation may not be able to cure the situation of economic distress in which the farmers have found themselves it can assist in alleviating that distress by wise constructive measures. The Republican party has dedicated itself to the promise to be of all the assistance that legislation can bring about.

The immediate problem is more control of the farmer himself over his own destinies. His need is a market which would be more responsive to the direction a market in which he would have some voice. To be substantial and effective the machinery of such a system of control must be farmer owned and farmer operated. Thus it is important that whatever system of farm relief is eventually adopted it must have the farmer himself at the seat of control and not be made a function of a government bureau or be directed by government employees.

During the present administration twenty six laws have been passed and signed by the president for the benefit of the farmer. Of these measures I have given each my hearty support and approval.

As a member of the Senate I have directed much of my attention toward legislation designed to bring greater prosperity to farm people. It is my firm belief that the farmers of this country are too well informed and too well educated in the basic principles of farm economics to be led into any of the unsound schemes of proposed relief in which are included such features as the equalization fee or price fixing arrangements.

Agricultural Tariff

'Sound foreign marketing policy not only for farm products but for non agricultural commodities in order to insure a limited prosperity in other industries insuring thereby buying power to the public for the output of the farm is of special interest to the farmers of the nation today.

'Next to raising his crops, the farmers interest is in obtaining a market for his products and necessary a market for his rights. This gives him a part color in time for desiring a sound foreign marketing policy of all products as sustained prosperity every where means buying power of the public for farm commodities.

'Ninety percent of this country's farm products are consumed at home while ten percent represents the surplus which must be disposed of abroad. The proper and profitable disposition of this surplus is the highly important problem now facing agriculture.

A forward step was taken by the present administration when an one genet tariff bill was passed and became law. This measure was an important beginning toward bringing agriculture and industry upon an economic equality in this country.

Tariff

The Republican party will continue to stand in the future as it always has for a protective tariff in the interests of American business labor and farm interests. The party will see that there will be no flooding of this country with goods from other countries to sell in competition with American made products.

The Democrats now for the first time appear to espouse a tariff for industry and agriculture while in the past session Senator Robinson their floor leader and now their candidate for vice president, not only spoke against a tariff for the farmers but introduced a bill for the repeal of the present tariff rates. The American farmer will prefer to leave the tariff question in the hands of the Republican party which for many years has insisted upon tariff protection.

Pick'em Blindfolded

Billboards Proclaim We Are Doing More Blindfolded Than Most People Can with Eyes Uncovered, Will Rogers Says

By WILL ROGERS

We Do So Well Blindfolded

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers And I have been so busy lately trying to learn to speak lines on the stage that I haven't read all there is in the papers But I have been keeping track of two things, that is the people who are so successfully taking the Blindfold tests and the speeches of the Candidates Both of these two things are of equal importance

It's really remarkable to what a high degree of efficiency we are developing ourselves Just think even blindfolded we are doing according to the billboards, more than most people can with their eyes uncovered And it just don't look like anybody ever fails Everyone you see with their picture on the boards have picked the right thing You know I think it would be a good idea if we did more things blindfolded We seem to do better that way than with the blinkers off Just imagine if everybody can pick out the proper cigaret while blindfolded, why why don't they apply the same thing to liquor People don't seem to be able to pick the right brand of liquor to stay alive on so why not blindfold them Maybe they can pick out a brand that they can live to enjoy And in marriage the blindfold test might help handicap divorces Of course to look at marriage you would think that both sides had applied the blindfold test But that's just it, if they did that had with eyes open and unhindered why it's a cinch they can't do worse blindfolded, and might accidentally do better

Late Breaking Out

I think from some of the speeches that the Candidates are using the Blindfold tests on their voters, only I don't look like they picked the right thing Its been a great campaign and the boys have thrown dignity and "High Hat Effects" to the winds and are going after that free vent at Washington Calvin was a big time coming out, but he finally did kinder emerge, not far enough to do a lot of good, but he showed he preferred Hoover to Smith, even if he didn't prefer Hoover to Coolidge Herbert won't hardly owe him a cabinet position on what he has done But on the other hand Cal feels like he has got a lot of dignity to maintain.

Quite a few of the boys were slow about taking to the old soap box to help clean up their party standard bearers Dawes didn't trot out till awful late in life Lowden at the present writing is hiding behind the barn tossing through the crack It's a good joke on Lowden if Hoover got in and Coll relieve the farmers Smith made quite a tour of one nighters around Missouri and Illinois He hit Sedalia even but we all my wildcat years ago I dident get that one But that's right near my old stamping ground of Boonville where I used to attend one of the reform schools there Sedalia is the Capitol where they send the Congressmen and Senators to keep them away from Jim Reed when he goes on one of his rampages He spoke at Sedalia on "Prosperity." He read a lot of records that Kinder showed that while Coolidge might have saved a little money, they had squandered quite a mess It showed that every Department had cost more in 1927, Ben in '28 While Mellon had been economical It cost quite a little more to get that way.

Dispute Figures

Smith spoke of a Lodge called the Woolpeepers' that had sworn to never throw away a cell shotpackage but use them for fuel, and there was a rule where they were supposed to write on both sides of the paper. Well even if they do that then the very next day Mellon comes out and says that Smith got his figures from the telephone directory and not from the Republican Campaign Committee, where he should have got them

Smith says the Country is not prosperous He means of course by that, that the Democratic end of the Country is not doing as well as they could if they were in office There is a great many Democrats that are forced to earn a living by the sweat of their brow when all they should be doing is indorsing a Government pay check

Mellon says, 'The Majority of the Country is prosperous' He means by that the Republicans are prosperous, and as there is supposed to be more Republicans than Democrats why of course the majority of the people are prosperous Mellon kinder insinuates that if a man dont know enough to be a Republican then how can he expect to know enough to be prosperous Al claims that being a Democrat is a badge of poverty that is worth more to wear than riches

Still Taking Poll

When a Democrat is hungry and cant manage to get anything to eat he can always satisfy his hunger by dreaming and harking back to the "Old Jeffersonian principles" No body knows what they were, but they have furnished a hope for the poor Democrats to rave about for a couple of generations He always wants a return of the Jeffersonian principles and give the Government back to the people Well the people wouldent know any more what to do with it than they did back in those days Nothing would please the rich more than to have the Government handed back to the people, for they would take it away from them so quick the people wouldent know what it looked like while they had it

The Literary Digest is still taking the poll of everybody that can write their name There was over three million that had voted this week and it showed that about one third more Republicans can write than Democrats Course when it comes time to go to the polls and vote, why you then can exclude the ones that cant write All you have to make is a cross so nobody knows how the 'Cross' vote will go It is to be like it will be Democratic, but no one knows for if they dont know how to read or write they are just as liable to put the cross after Hoovers name as they are after Smiths But its all been a great show put on for no reason at all for Coolidge could have stayed in there and made a better President than either one of them

Lack of Building Facilities Disrupts Organization System

In this competition Marion schools are handicapped through barriers which prevent the most efficient organization These barriers can be removed only by additional building, accommodations for proper distribution of pupils

The most effective type of school organization, the one which is generally recognized and in force throughout the country, is known as the 6 3 3 plan In the operation of this system, elementary schools include the first six grades, junior high schools the next three, and senior high schools the last three classes of public school pupils

This plan can be worked out effectively only when there are separate buildings for each of the three divisions

No school system can be recognized as thoroughly up to date and efficient necessary to modern standards unless this 6 3 3 organization is maintained

Forced to Abandon Plan

It has been established in most progressive schools of the country in the last two decades Marion started it but was unable to keep it up because of inadequate building space and equipment

Instead of having this one definite and scientific plan in effect Marion must struggle along with a mixture of seven separate types of organization, forcing teachers and school executives to shoulder tremendous burdens and difficulties in effectively educating the city's young people

The junior high school is the central and pivotal unit of the 6 3 3 system Prior to establishment of this new unit in public school organization here the old time 8 4 plan was in effect here and in the majority of other American communities Under this plan there were eight elementary grades and the four high school classes Experience has shown that the new 6 3 3 system is far superior to the old But now Marion has neither the 8 4 nor the 6 3 3

It was about seven years ago that local school authorities started the first junior high schools here For a time it appeared that the plan could be worked out successfully, but enrollment increased so rapidly that the available building accommodations were outgrown and shifting of pupils from one building to another became necessary gradually disrupting the efficient 6 3 3 system

At the present time necessity rather

Governmental Economy

Sound government finance is a necessary element of prosperity To fully appreciate the present sound state of American governmental finance and the great strides toward our present condition, it is necessary to understand that at the beginning of the Republican administration, seven years ago, the country's economic condition was at such a low ebb as to amount to a dangerous crisis

Business derangement extended to all industries to agriculture to transportation, to banking to manufactures to building and in general to the whole country The drought on pressure for the adoption of unsound radical remedies, such as government control of price levels government debts to industries subsidy of home building lower freight rates without reducing the cost of operation, elaborate plans of public improvement to make jobs for the unemployed and unsound measures for the relief of agriculture

The war had absorbed the liquid assets of the rural agencies banking was difficult industries were starved for want of capital business enterprise was paralyzed labor had been forced out into the streets, and in all there existed a crisis in not only our financial institutions, but the very government itself was in a state of jeopardy

Wise administrative management under Republican control has made possible a reduction of over a billion eight hundred million dollars a year in the tax bill of the American people Four separate tax reductions have been made and millions of those people least able to pay have been taken from the tax rolls

In seven years the public debt has been reduced by $8 111 000 000 and there has been effected a saving of interest charges of not less than $1 275 000 000, without which the most recent tax reduction measure would not have been possible

Under the leadership summoned to action at the beginning of the Republican administration seven and one half years ago, industry in the United States has risen from the mire of economic prostration to a standard never before experienced in the history of the nation

Through regulation of production within the demands of consumption on the one hand and the organization of labor on the other prices are stabilized on a high level

It is the ambition of the Republican party to continue the present conditions in industry and to do everything humanly possible to banish unstable conditions in business

Labor

Deposits in the savings banks of America today amounts to more than seven times the total capital of the national and state banks and the trust companies of the nation combined We are now enjoying the longest period of sustained prosperity in the nation's history

The Republican party stands today, as it always has for a continuance of tariff to prevent the flooding of the country with goods from other countries and assuring the continuance of the good business conditions which have made this prosperity possible

"American homes send one third more children to the public schools and ten times more to college than the next greatest nation The best leadership in every industry has been mobilized to coordinate America in a campaign to lift it from the mire of economic prostration to the plane of living comparable with our moral ideals

The farm people of Ohio are educated in the affairs of agriculture as a national problem to the extent that they are well able to distinguish between sound and unsound policies for the relief of farm depression which has beset rural America since the World war upset the economic status of agriculture seven years ago

Farm people will not be misled into believing that their problem is a political one It is not it is an economic problem To insist that the laws of economics can be changed by legislation is but an attempt to mislead the farmer into unsound theories

While legislation may not be able to cure the situation of economic distress in which the farmers have found themselves it can assist in alleviating that distress by wise constructive measures The Republican party has dedicated itself to the promise to be of all the assistance that legislation can bring about

The immediate problem is more control of the farmer himself over his own destinies His need is a market which would be more responsive to his direction a market in which he would have some voice To be substantial and effective the machinery of such a system of control must be farmer owned and farmer operated Thus it is important that whatever system of farm relief is eventually adopted it must have the farmer himself at the seat of control and not be made a function of or a government bureau or be directed by government employees

During the present administration twenty six laws have been passed and signed by the president for the benefit of the farmer Of these measures I have given each my hearty support and approval

As a member of the Senate I have directed much of my attention toward legislation designed to bring greater prosperity to farm people It is my firm belief that the farmers of this country are too well informed and too well educated in the basic principles of farm economics to be led into any of the unsound schemes of proposed relief in which are included such features as the equalization fee or price fixing arrangements

Sound foreign marketing policy, not only for farm products but for non agricultural commodities in order to insure a continued prosperity in other industries insuring thereby buying power to the public for the output of the farm is of special interest to the farmers of the nation today.

"Next to raising the crops, the farmer's interest is in obtaining a market for his products and especially a market for his surplus This is of particular moment to dairying a special products as sustained prosperity everywhere means buying power of the public for farm commodities.

"Ninety percent of this country's farm products are consumed at home while ten percent represents the surplus which must be disposed of abroad The proper and profitable disposition of the surplus is the highly important problem now facing agriculture

A forward step was taken by the present administration when an emergency tariff bill was passed and became law This measure was an important beginning toward bringing agriculture and industry upon an economic equality in this country

Tariff

"The Republican party will continue to stand in the future as it always has, for a protective tariff in the interests of American business, labor and farm interests The party will see that there will be no flooding of this country with goods from other countries to sell in competition with American made products.

The Democrats now for the first time appear to espouse a tariff for industry and agriculture while in the last session Senator Robinson their floor leader and now their candidate for vice president, not only spoke against a tariff for the farmers but introduced a bill for the repeal of the present tariff rates The American farmer will prefer to leave the tariff question in the hands of the Republican party which for many years has insisted upon tariff protection

Billboards Proclaim We Are Doing More Blindfolded Than Most People Can with Eyes Uncovered, Will Rogers Says

By WILL ROGERS

We Do So Well Blindfolded

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. And I have been so busy lately trying to learn to speak lines on the stage that I haven't read all there is in the papers. But I have been keeping track of two things, that is the people who are so successfully taking the Blindfold tests and the speeches of the Candidate. Both of these two things are of equal importance.

It's really remarkable to what a high degree of efficiency we are developing ourselves. Just think even blindfolded, we are doing according to the billboards more than most people can with their eyes uncovered. And it just don't look like anybody ever falls. Everyone you see with their picture on the boards have picked the right thing. You know I think it would be a good idea if we did more things blindfolded. We seem to do better that way than with the blinkers off. Just imagine if everybody can pick out the proper cigaret while blindfolded! why why don't they apply the same thing to liquor. People don't seem to be able to pick the right brand of liquor to stay alive on so why not blindfold them? Maybe they can pick out a brand that they can live to enjoy. And in marriage the blindfold test might help han heal divorces. Of course to look at marriage you would think that both sides had applied the blindfold test. But that's just it, if they did that had with eyes open and understood why it's a cinch they can't do worse blindfolded, and might act decidedly better.

Late Breaking Out

I think from some of the speeches that the Candidates are using the Blindfold tests on their voters, only it don't look like they picked the right thing. It's been a great campaign and the boys have thrown plenty mud "High Muckedmuck" to the wall and are going after that free rent at Washington. Calvin was a long time coming out but he really did kinder emerge not far enough to do a lot of good but he showed he preferred Hoover to Smith, even if he didn't prefer Hoover to Coolidge. Herbert didn't hardly owe him a cabinet position on what he has done. But on the other hand Cal feels like he has got a lot of dignity to maintain.

Quite a few of the boys were also about taking to the oil soup line to help clean up their party's standard bearers. Dawes didn't break out till awful late in life. Lowden at the present writing is hiding behind the barn losing through the crack. Be a good job on Lowden if Hoover got in and did relieve the farmers. Smith made quite a tour of our Northern Missouri and Illinois. He hit Sedalia even me on all my wildcat tours didn't get that one. But that's right near my old stamping ground of Boonville, where I used to attend one of the reform schools there Sedalia is the Capitol where they send the Congressmen and Senators to keep them away from Jim Reed when he goes on one of his rampages. He spoke at Sedalia on "Prosperity." He read a lot of records that Kinder showed that while Coolidge might have saved a little money, they had a pandemonium quite a mess. It showed that every Department had cost more in 1927, than in 20. While Mellon had been economical it cost quite a bit more here to get that way.

Dispute Figures

Smith spoke of a Lodge called the Woolgrowers' that had sworn to never throw away pencil sharpenings, but use them for fuel and there was a rule where they were supposed to write on both sides of the paper. Well even if they do that then the very next day Mellon comes out and says that Smith got his figures from the telephone directory and not from the Republican Campaign Committee where he should have got them.

Smith says the Country is not prosperous. He means of course by that that the Democratic end of the Country is not doing as well as they could if they were in office. There is a great many Democrats that are forced to earn a living by the sweat of their brow when all they should be doing is endorsing a Government pay check.

Mellon says "The Majority of the Country is prosperous." He means by that the Republicans are prosperous and as there is supposed to be more Republicans than Democrats why of course the majority of the people are prosperous. Mellon kinder insinuates that if a man dont know enough to be a Republican then how can he expect to know enough to be prosperous. Al claims that being a Democrat is a badge of poverty that is worth more to wear than riches.

Still Taking Poll

When a Democrat is hungry and cant manage to get anything to eat he can always satisfy his hunger by dreaming and hailing back to the "Old Jeffersonian principles." Nobody knows what they were but they have furnished a topic for the poor Democrats to rave about for a couple of generations. He always wants a return of the Jeffersonian principles and give the Government back to the people. Well, the people wouldent know any more what to do with it than they did back in those days. Nothing would please the rich more than to have the Government handed back to the people, for they would take it away from them so quick the people wouldent know what it looked like while they had it.

The Literary Digest is still taking the poll of everybody that can write their name. There was over three million that had voted this week and it showed that about one third more Republicans can write than Democrats. Course when it comes time to go to the polls and vote, why you then can include the ones that cant write. All you have to make is a cross so nobody knows how the Cross vote will go. It looks like it will be Democratic but no one knows for if they dont know how to read or write they are just as liable to put the cross after Hoover's name as they are after Smith's. But its all been a great show put on for no reason at all for Coolidge could have stayed in there and made a better President than either one of them.

REPAIRING RAILS

Contractor Tracks Bonded to Prevent Electrolysis

Work of bonding the rail joints was in the switch at Center st. just east of Main st. is being done by the C. D. A. M. Electric Co. this week. At the same time the rail bond is being repaired.

In bonding the two rails are connected with a heavy copper cable at the joint. This is done to prevent the escape of electricity from the rails. Escape of electricity from the rails results in the electrolysis damaging water and gas mains and causes it corrupts near the joint parts of the rail connection.

New City Hosue Near Completion Is Report

Although no definite information is yet available being made with the new Union and rest by the Marion Lumber Co. the last from the contractor here, Ray Mann, president of the company, believes that the first two of the 12 buses are nearing completion.

A telegram checking a connection in the Lima factory to be placed on the buses was received by Mann from the bus company early this week. Mann believes that the Yellow Motor Coach Co. of Pontiac, Mich., builders of the buses, would not be inquiring in regard to lettering unless the buses were practically ready for letters. Lettering is one of the last things to be done in bus construction according to Ray Mann.

Veterans Form Nucleus of Efficient Plant

THE Hocking Valley Railway has in its employ approximately 600 men who have been on its rolls for a minimum of twenty-five years each. Twenty-five of these men have been with the Company for fifty years or more.

This honored list of Veterans forms a tested nucleus about which has been built an efficient organization, whose primary purpose is to render a dependable service to the public.

From one end of the System to the other there will be found hundreds of loyal men and women, in offices, shops and on the road, who are devoting all the ability and all the skill they possess to build up this transportation machine to the point where it will function in a manner that is completely adequate for our shippers and patrons.

In steadily perfecting the human element to its highest point of development, the Company at the same time is providing modern tools and mechanical facilities for use and the latest and safest equipment of all kinds.

In acknowledging our responsibilities as a public service corporation, the Hocking Valley gives renewed assurance that its full resources of personnel and plant will be used in the rendering of a service that shall fully satisfy the transportation needs of the people.

TIME FOR CONTEST ENTRIES NEAR END

Today Marks Wind-Up of Enrollment for Declamation Competition

10 CHURCHES ENTERED

Rev. Geo. E. Groves in Charge of Arrangements in Marion County

Today was the final day for enrollment in the Prince of Peace declamation contest being conducted throughout Ohio churches by the Ohio Council of Churches. Applications for enrollment must be mailed to contest authorities by midnight tonight.

Ten Marion county churches have enrolled in the contest to date, according to announcement made by the Rev. George E. Groves, county chairman. There are 699 churches enrolled in the state at the present time.

A bronze medal on back in diameter, inscribed "Prince of Peace Medal" is the award for the winner of the Prince of Peace contest in each participating local church that musters three or more contestants.

The medals are offered by the Ohio Council of Churches, the co-operative organization of 17 Protestant denominations that sponsors the contest. They bear the emblem of the council, a cross superimposed on an outline map of the state of Ohio.

The Ohio Council of Churches has presented more than 1,600 of these medals in the last three annual contests. Silver medals to be awarded in county contests and gold medals for the congressional district contests later in the year in the same design as the bronze medals.

A Revival Needed

A SERMONETTE
BY THE REV. H. E. WILLIAMSON
Pastor, Oakland Evangelical Church

THAT America needs a revival is admitted by men everywhere and in all walks of life. The Wall Street Journal says, "we need a revival." Dr. H. C. Morrison, noted preacher and editor says, "We must have a revival or a revolution." America must repent and turn back to God or our civilization is doomed. The mayor of Philadelphia recently appealed to Billy Sunday to come to his city and hold a revival in the hope of stopping crime, lawlessness and political corruption.

America needs a revival because:

1. No nation can long endure without true religion. Israel, Rome, Greece and Germany fell when religion declined.

2. Modernism in many pulpits and worldliness and spiritual indifference in many pews have robbed the church of her power to save men from sin.

3. Seventy millions of our American citizens are not identified with any church, either Catholic or Protestant.

4. At least 20 millions of our youth are given no religious instruction.

5. Crime, immorality and divorce are on the increase. Read the court records and see. Social impurity and broken homes will ruin any nation.

6. Lawlessness in general is on the increase. Every daily paper records the growing list.

7. Officials in our land are unable to cope with the crime wave now sweeping the nation. Chicago alone has nearly one murder per day. Corrupt officials wink at crime and lawlessness. Courts and juries and pettifogging lawyers will free a guilty lawbreaker and let him carry on.

8. We are fast becoming a nation of Sabbath breakers. France once forsook the Seventh day for rest and worship and went on the rocks and has never recovered her moral balance.

9. Atheistic and evolutionary teaching is being taught in our higher institutions of learning, robbing our youth of their simple faith in the saving gospel of Jesus Christ.

10. The masses are immersed in the materialism which blinds their eyes to the things that are spiritual and eternal.

Prayer: "O Lord, revive thy work. In wrath remember mercy."

Dr. Copeland Emphasizes Eating Rules We Have Always Advocated

If you habitually take foods that are harmful to your system, your stomach can not be trusted to tell you truthfully whether you need more food or not. You just don't know whether you have had enough or really require more. On the contrary, if you are sensible about your eating, and practice common sense every day, you may trust your appetite. Your feelings will accurately record your necessities.

Under these circumstances, to add a single morsel, is only to give unnecessary labor to the digestive system. As the epigram states it will give "only a new Labor to a tired digestion."

Qualified by Past Service

B. J. SHELTON

Experience is regarded as an important qualification for positions of responsibility in private life and should be fully as essential in public work.

B. J. Shelton, candidate for County Treasurer, bases his campaign largely upon his record in that office and the fact that his experience places him in position to give the public thoroughly efficient and economical service.

Investigation will show that during his time as treasurer, new methods of tax collection and other details of office management have been introduced, resulting in improved service at minimum cost.

He invites inquiry into his record and solicits support of all voters of the county in the Nov. 6th election.

Elect Grant E. Mouser, Jr. To Congress

He has conducted a clean campaign, and has frankly stated to the voters, his stand upon the issues affecting the welfare of the voters of the Eighth Congressional District.

He has lived in Marion all of his life, and his friends and neighbors, who have observed him daily, know of his character and of his fight in behalf of the people, who have given him their confidence by voting for him.

He has frankly stated his position upon these questions, and has refused to engage in personalities, even though insinuations and innuendoes have been cast against him by those who resent his interest in behalf of the people. Do you realize that there are hidden forces who strike in the dark, who would destroy the man who has fought your battles against tremendous odds?

In the issue of the Morrow County Independent of Thursday, October 18, 1928, Mr. William Conaway, Editor of that paper, speaking of Mr. Mouser, says 'Mouser's campaign outlook could not be better, and best of all, he has kept to the high level of decency, mud slinging being taboo."

Reports from all over the District, from members of both parties, indicate that on November 6th, Mouser will be elected.

Recently Mrs. Alice VanSickle of Cardington, the oldest newspaper writer in Ohio, who has supported Mouser's opponent in two previous campaigns, earnestly endorsed his candidacy.

Daily Proverb—"Something better always makes its appearance when old and worn-out things fail."

Senator Hiram Johnson denies the report that he has thought of bolting the Republican ticket. "Uncle Hiram" did that once, and "once was enough for him."

Congressman Davey charges that his opponent for the Ohio governorship "lies." Hardly the language one would anticipate from a candidate for the governor's chair.

Too much advance publicity caused Senator Norris' little political play to go wrong. The public became so tired of it that when he finally executed his flop it proved a dud.

Collyer and Tucker crossed the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific in twenty-four hours and fifty-one minutes. Why, that's a lot faster than even Jules Verne could think of sending them across!

Former Congressman Charles B. Wharton, of Chicago, has been sentenced to two years in prison for complicity in the Evergreen Park mail robbery near the Windy City. We have suspected that the voters up that way get careless at times in selecting their law-makers.

Atlantic, Iowa, reports a $10,000 daylight bank robbery and Tracy, California, a mail truck hold-up which netted the bandits $28,000. And yet the people of this country are actually worrying over politics.

The law of gravity has been defied in both London and Atlanta, Georgia; a piece of metal in each case being made to remain in the air. However, it was necessary to employ the law of magnetic repulsion to overcome gravity, and we can't see how the discovery is going to get us anywhere.

President John Sullivan of the New York Federation of Labor charges that Mr. Hoover employed serfs in Russia, coolies in China and slaves in Burmah. Politics appears to have reached the silly stage in New York state.

A University of California student missing since October 3 was left bound up and bound and gagged on the porch of his fiancee's home Wednesday night. Should it develop that this is another so-called college prank, the country will be more than ever inclined to wonder if higher education pays.

"It is reported that Queen Marie, of Rou*mania, has influenza,*" says a Cleveland paper; "proving that nobody is influential enough to escape it." It wouldn't have been much more of a crime had the paragrapher spelled "influential" with a "z."

Testimony offered in the trial of the sixteen Eller gangsters up in Chicago goes to show that the murder of Grundy, the opponent of Boss Morris Eller for ward committeeman, was premeditated and executed in cold blood. Almost anything is liable to happen in a city in which crime and politics go hand in hand.

Poor Mr. Raskob.

Early in the campaign both the chairmen of the two old party national committees seemed to be laboring under the delusion that the public was hungering and thirsting for such views as they might have on the issues of the campaign and politics generally.

Some good friend may have tipped Mr. Work off to the fact that announcements by him from day to day were not absolutely compulsory. In any event, he has been quite modest, of late, in that regard.

But Mr. Raskob, apparently, has not been the recipient of a like friendly suggestion. Either that, or he is not amenable to friendly advice. He has kept right on.

Now Mr. Raskob has the reputation, very probably deservedly too, of being a high-class chairman of a big industrial organization, but that doesn't necessarily qualify him as an astute politician, at least not enough of a politician to stop and consider, before making an utterance, what the possible comeback, if any, may be. Had he been, he would have considered quite a spell before holding out that "Republican prosperity is a myth." That was a blunder on his part. Some other man might have scoffed at prosperity and gotten away with it, but not Mr. John J. Raskob.

"Mr. Raskob is the temporarily retired financial chairman of General Motors," is the comeback of Senator Arthur H. Vanderberg, of Michigan. "He begs you to rescue America from starvation and elect a Democratic administration.

"In the hungry seven years of Republican rule the car sales of General Motors have increased from 313,000 a year to 1,313,000 cars a year. The value of General Motors stock has increased to a staggering figure.

"And Raskob calls Republican prosperity a myth!"

Really, we feel sorry for Mr. Raskob.

Truax on Value of Farm Products.

Mr. Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture, has prepared and uttered a statement in which he sets out that the value of farm crops and livestock in Marion county decreased $5,117,900 between the years 1919 and 1927. Mr. Truax could have made his figures somewhat more impressive had he extended them back to 1919, but he probably refrained from doing so for two reasons—the date, 1919, would have recalled the fact that the valuations were war prices and the succeeding figures would have shown that the prices of farm products had fallen considerably under the Wilson administration. Trust Mr. Truax not to make such a showing as that.

Mr. Truax issued his statement, as he indicates, for the purpose of showing the need of legislation and economic measures for the benefit of agriculture, not only in Ohio, but throughout the nation.

We very seriously doubt the truth of this intimation. The fact that similar figures were compiled by him, as he has told us, only for the counties of Ohio rather tends to show that he was and is much less interested in advancing the cause of agriculture throughout the nation than in boosting his candidacy for the United States senate in this state.

We have no inclination to investigate the accuracy of the figures offered by Mr. Truax. For the sake of argument, let us assume that they are correct. There can be no question that there has been a decided drop in the prices of farm products and livestock since 1919. October 27, 1919, good and choice steers were commanding from $18.75 to $19.50 in Chicago. Good hogs were bringing from $13 to $13.70. Corn was bringing $1.26 and oats 71½. Here in Marion $2.18 was offered for wheat. Yesterday the same class of steers brought from $10 to $17 in Chicago, medium weight hogs from $8.90 to $9.25, corn from 90 to 91 and oats 41. The local wheat price was $1.28.

What's the answer to all of it?

In 1919 the prices brought for farm products and livestock, like the prices of about everything else, were hangovers from the peak prices of war time. Prices were falling, but they were yet abnormally high. The prices of foodstuffs, especially, were strong. The grain fields of Europe had been neglected. Great areas in France, Belgium, Italy and Russia had been devastated. Europe had to look to the Americas for food and Herbert Hoover, the present Republican candidate for president, was feeding her starving. All this resulted in the maintaining, in great degree, of the abnormal prices brought by the products of American farms and the farmers of the United States profited by it. So enthusiastic were some of them in the belief that such prices would obtain for all time, so blind were they that a period of price readjustment must inevitably come, that many farmers here in Marion county mortgaged the farms they had to buy more land at from $200 to $225 an acre. It is hardly necessary to say that the majority of such purchasers ultimately lost their original farm holdings as well as those newly acquired.

There was a real price orgie during the war beyond all question. This paper paid as high as eleven and twelve cents a pound for news print it had purchased previously for three and has since purchased at almost that low a figure. The housewife paid ten and twelve cents a pound for sugar, which she now buys for less than six. Everything was selling in about the same proportion above its true value. A readjustment was necessary. It came and prices fell. One great packing company was almost wrecked because of the stock it had on hand which it was compelled to sacrifice. It survived, but its head to save it applied and lost his private fortune of something like $300,000,000. Banks felt its effect. A great mail-order house had to be rescued. Merchants were compelled to sell the goods on their shelves for far less than they cost. Industries were crippled by plants for which they had no use. The prices of about everything dropped save that of labor and whisky. The former was organized and the latter had been made contraband. All forms of industry, save the farming, and all lines of business took their losses and were ready to forget. They may not have been happy over it, but they stood their losses without serious complaint.

But an element of the farming industry will not forget. Led by agitators of the Truax type, it wants to buy at the adjusted prices and sell its products at the prices brought by them in time of war. And today we have the Ohio state director of agriculture seeking to advance his personal political interests by striving to maintain the discontent of this element and arousing discontent in others by comparing the prices farm products are bringing today with the prices they brought the year before the readjustment movement was in full stride, withholding the fact that the latter prices were the results of war's aftermath.

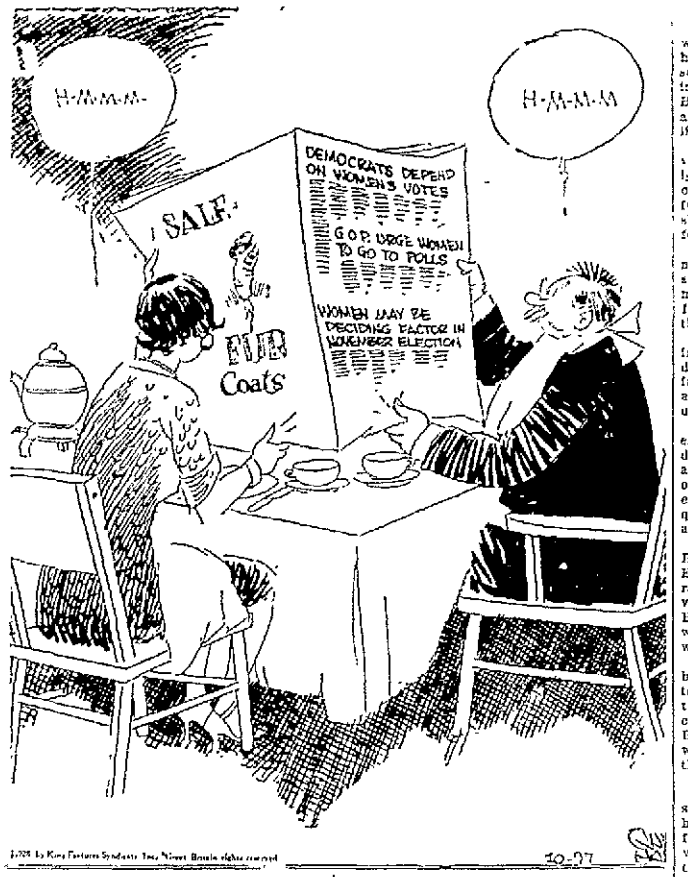
We question if it is good politics for a state official to use his position and employ the tactics Mr. Truax has in this respect. We seriously question if cheap demagoguery ever pays.

"Borah Is Assailed by James M. Cox," read a headline yesterday. Wouldn't that jar you? The political tomb is actually giving up its dead.

It's about a hundred-to-one proposition that time will show that, among the mistakes of the present campaign, the running of two large and very striking advertisements in the New York City papers was not among the least.

Tammany Leader George W. Olvany, writing in Scribner's for November, would prove the high character of his organization by pointing out the number of its members who have reached high office. It will have to be admitted that it certainly has been mighty diligent in holding public offices.

THE RIVAL FALL CAMPAIGNS.



Youngsters Awake Terrified.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Young children have disturbances in the sleep just as adults do. Their highly-organized nervous systems make them more sensitive and they express their feelings more jolenily.

"Night-terrors" sometimes come to frighten the child and cause it to awaken cold and screaming in agony. Even though the youngster appears to be in perfect health, there may be such an attack.

An older child may jump out of bed and run screaming about the room. Even the mother is unrecognized and there may appear to be an utter lack of consciousness. It is extremely difficult to pacify the fears of the frightened child.

It is rare to have more than one spell in a night. This is likely to come after a couple of hours of sleep. It may come every night or may occur infrequently.

It is probable some digestive disturbance is responsible for such an attack. Of course, most children have such good digestion that they are not afflicted in this manner. But if there is a highly-sensitive nervous organization, a digestive disturbance of small importance may have this effect.

The way to treat night-terrors, if I may put it this way, is to avoid the conditions responsible for them. Careful attention to the diet is of greatest importance. Proper feeding and prohibition of such foods as are known to upset the child are things which suggest themselves.

Sensitive children, having highly organized nerves, must be kept from excitement. Romping and carrying on just before bedtime should be avoided. It is essential that the evening meal should be a light one. All the meals, indeed, should be wisely planned.

Lots of sunshine and fresh air, ventilation of the sleeping-room, the avoidance of too much bed clothes and regular bowel and kidney movements must be given attention. Do not overlook them.

If these attacks of night-terrors are frequent or increasingly severe talk with your doctor. He will advise you.

An occasional child appears to be more or less sleepless on occasion, or all the time indeed. Colicky pains or other digestive symptoms may break the rest and interfere with those hours of uninterrupted sleep so important for a baby or older child.

A regular constipation as the most fruitful cause for sleeplessness in adults. It is equally important in infants. The mother must take care to have the feeding mixture just right. Too much sugar or too much cream may interfere with normal bowel action.

Overfeeding, crowding the little stomach is another factor to be considered. It requires eternal watchfulness to make sure the little chap is getting exactly the right amounts of precisely the right food.

Older children may be restless and sleepless because they have been put to bed too early. Regularity in this matter must be observed.

The child may seem hot and restless on this account. A sponge bath will cool the skin, giving such comfort as to invite sleep almost immediately.

No child, tiny or bigger, can be happy, well nourished and vigorously healthy without an abundance of sleep. Care must be taken to do away with all those things that cause night-terrors, restlessness, or sleeplessness. A little study on the part of the mother will solve the problem.

Editorial Opinion.

THE NEW REPARATIONS PLAN.

The plan for the creation of an international committee to fix definitely the annual reparations payments which Germany is to make—thereby at least plainly implying a fixed total for the German burden, and a period within which the payments must be made—represents the common sense and conservative view of the matter of the German liability and its discharge. The plan is associated with the name of S. Parker Gilbert, the American who is the international agent for German *reparations, but it answers to a step taken to*ward the creation of such a committee at Geneva some weeks ago, and Mr. Gilbert's present negotiations at London and Paris are in furtherance of the initiative taken then and there. The plan is really the fruition of the Dawes plan, and it substitutes exact and regular payments for the shifting, uncertain, patched-up arrangements under that plan. It is needless to say that precise amounts to be exacted remain to be fixed, since the committee has not yet met or been constituted, but the negotiations rest quite inferibly on the basis that the best financial judgment, which has been at work on the problem for some time, has found to be practicable and enforceable, and it is apparent that the sum total of the German payment, as reflected in the annual payments, will represent a considerable reduction from the $33,000,000,000 fixed by France—a sum that completely swamped the German exchequer.

The German Nationalists, now dominant in the politics of the Reich, appear to be balking in the acceptance of the idea embodied in the Gilbert negotiations, but it is hard to see how the German government could refuse to assent. For one thing, the liberation of the Rhineland from French occupation would quite positively rest on German consent to the plan, if it were formally and internationally promulgated. Without her acceptance of the plan, Germany would be unable to market her bonds in the United States. Moreover, the plan, as we have indicated, means a considerable lightening of the German ultimate load. The rati*fication of the arrangement would conduce to a* general economic development of Europe, including Germany. It would point, undoubtedly—that would be an unavoidable corollary—to the ratification by France of the Mellon-Berenger *arrange*ment for the payment of the French war debt to the United States. The proposed agreement is likely to be a good thing all around.—Boston Transcript.

ORGANIZED BANDITRY.

While police departments are trying to cope with a bandit system imported from the Old world, Uncle Sam might help some by dealing himself a hand in the game. If our immigration laws haven't teeth enough in them to bite the Mafia, Camorra and Blackhanders out of our system, congress might as well get busy on a big dental job.

Through centuries a system of organized banditry, blackmail and murder grew up in certain parts of Italy. Its victims were so terrorized that they were afraid to testify against the murderers. Crime became an organized business, taking in practically all social classes.

But Mussolini put a clean-up man on the job, gave him a free hand and he cleaned up. The bandit business no longer exists.

Along with the respectable foreign element that came to America there came a sprinkling of the banditry. It has been at work for many years. Today it is organized business in some of our large cities. Prohibition gave it an opportunity to get rich, and to develop into big business dimensions. In Chicago it has preyed upon business, blackmail is organized, bandit kings sit on their beer keg thrones, send out their thugs with their pineapples and stink bombs, their sawed-off shotguns and their deadly machine guns to intimidate small business men and force them to pay tribute. The alternative is a bombed place of business or residence, or possibly a murdered business man.

Organized blackmail, organized murder, funerals for bandits that outshine those of royalty, elaborate banquets to bandit kings that are attended by mayors, judges and other American public officials, utter contempt for law, all these are results of an alliance between rotten politics and crime and the opportunities that have followed in the wake of prohibition.

There is no bigger job for government to tackle than the job of cleaning up this imported banditry and orgy of crime, this rule of the criminal underworld through its power in politics.—Columbus Citizen.

Woe to them that go down to Egypt for help; and stay on horses, and trust in chariots, because they are many; and in horsemen, because they are very strong; but they look not unto he Holy One of Israel, neither seek the Lord!—Isaiah 31:1.

Prayer—O my God, I trust in Thee.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 27.—The glitter of a Broadway night has the quick stimulation of a heady wine for the visitor. Few are conscious of the power of light to promote spending and yet one night several years ago when Broadway signs went dark business came to a full stop. Inside, the stores were as well lighted as ever.

The lights o' Broadway has always provided a romantic glamour for a street that is little different from a thousand and one other streets in America. Without the effulgence, it is mostly a succession of small shops, quick lunches, movies and skyscrapers found everywhere.

In the calm clarity of daylight one sees nothing to distinguish it. There is to be sure the endless stream of humanity, but that may be found on any well traveled thoroughfare. The people appear no different from those in Seattle, Indianapolis or Bangor.

But when the millions of incandescents pop into a dazzle of rushing color and fire, the drab cheapness vanishes as mist in the sun. It flames into an indefinable dignity. People as colorless as those white wriggly things under old rocks take on sudden importance.

The mirrored little perfume shop seems enchanted, there is a witchery in the darkened chop suey parlors and a deceptive and alluring charm to grim-cracks we pass ordinarily without notice. The ladies "in *evening dress and the men in silk hats ac*quire the romantic halo of plumed knights and princesses.

The truth is that in the glare of light Broadway merely becomes self-conscious. Eyes grow brighter, color becomes more radiant, steps quicken and conversation volatile. Even old timers accustomed to Broadway's glare, feel a rise in their pulse when they turn from a dark street into Broadway. They want to e t-up.

Those who picture Broadway's fire as the beckoning beacon, a Lorelei luring thousands to mortgage the old home, are accustomed to the disdainful hoots. Even old timers, so close to its tragedies, are inclined to scoff. But the fact remains Broadway at night is a wicked street. And a dangerous street for those who do not watch their step.

The knotty servant question that became such a problem for New Yorkers who "keep house" shows signs of untangling. Many former servants who went into other sorts of work are returning to old posts. They found that with the high cost of living even a doubly high salary reduced their savings. This summer there was an over supply of servants for those owning homes in the country and it is reported there will be plenty to go around for town apartments this winter. And that for many is within an inch or so of being just dandy.

My notion of a fellow with an idea is one who has opened an office on Madison avenue with a service most of us have needed at some time or other. For a small yearly fee, he will suggest telegrams of congratulations for newlyweds, notes of condolences to the bereaved and pretty phrasing for other incidents for which most of us have long ago run out of ideas. He guarantees duplications will never occur.

And still another idea to kick around. An agency furnishes uniformed young men for a dollar an hour to walk dogs. Only midtown cliff dwellers who own dogs and walk around with them, gazing at tall buildings and trying to look unconcerned realize what a big help this is.

New York's divorce colony in Reno has found that city is also a Grotna Green. Husbands and wives go there to toss off matrimonial shackles and come back with new mates. More than a dozen New Yorkers have had this eventuate recently. Most of them depart swearing if they can just be free once more—never again! But misery loves company, pity is akin to love or how is your Aunt Ida? In any event resolutions fly out the window and back they come with a divorce and a new partner.

The Living World.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

How many planets in the solar system are inhabited? We know of but one—the earth. We think that Venus and Mars may be inhabited, but we do not know, and perhaps shall never know. Nevertheless, the more optimistic and imaginative spirits among us speculate on the possibility that some day we may correspond with intelligent inhabitants of Mars or Venus, or even pay them a visit, or receive a visit from them. The realization of either of these expectations would mark a new era in the history of mankind—the first voyage across interplanetary space. Such speculation is encouraged by the coming into existence in France of a society of "astronautics"—star navigation—a society which lives on hope and the future.

The result of this concentration of attention on the other planets which accompany the earth in its voyage 'ith the sun through universal space is to give us an outside point of view from which to regard our own world. By studying the earth as it would appear to inhabitants say of the moon or of Venus we get a very comprehensive and enlightening view of our little globular abiding place, spinning like a tossed ball in the sunshine.

Those who visit the American Museum of Natural History in New York will see on one of its walls a picture by Howard Russell Butler of the earth suspended in the sky above a rugged lunar landscape. This picture is more than a work of art, for its maker was guided by expert scientific knowledge in his painting. It is so far approved by astronomers that a colored reproduction of it appears as frontispiece in the authoritative revision of Professor Young's "Manual of Astronomy," by Russell, Dugan and Stewart.

This vivid representation of our living world as seen from a distance of a quarter of a million miles makes many spectators stare in wondering surprise. Above the spiring peaks and night-haunted abysses of the white skeletonized moon hangs the richly-tinted earth, its huge globe distorted into a strange "gibbous" shape by the fact that the observer on the moon is out of line with the sun behind him, so that the rays of sunlight fail to reach and reveal the left-hand border of the terrestrial sphere. The time of observation is three days before the time of new moon; the place one of the "craters" near the moon's nor pole.

In the black sky the earth is spotted green, yellow, blue and white. The clouds are white, a large area of the North Atlantic being concealed under a cyclonic storm. Parts of continental coasts are faintly visible. The equatorial region is marked by a yellowish band, and the Sahara and other cloudless areas are similarly colored. The polar regions are white.

Most remarkable among the special features visible is a phenomenon that could only be seen from an extra-terrestrial point of view—a brilliant reflection of the sun from the surface of the Atlantic off the coast of Africa. To the lunar observer this reflection would appear to change place slowly with the alteration of the relative positions of the earth and the sun.

The uncovered parts of the ocean appear blue, giving a dark contrast to the directly reflected sunlight, the smooth rounded water-surface acting like a convex mirror. Ah, if those imaginary lunar observers could only exist! How they would watch and marvel at that wandering spot of dazzling light, proof in itself, if they had science enough to understand its meaning, that the enormous multi-colored globe hanging in their sky and pouring upon them a "moonlight" forty times as bright as that which we receive must be a world filled with life. And what a sight for the first mortals who shall set foot on the moon to look back at!—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Earlier in the year talk about poor business persisted. The heat of the presidential campaign and the uncertainty of outcome that always clouds up an election year was feared by manufacturers, merchants and men in various lines. In a recent week the American Railway association reported that car loadings of freight exceeded the corresponding week a year ago by more than 16,000 cars. The week was the biggest in volume for the entire year. The gloom has lifted and the ghost has fled. Business is better and getting better in America.

Let those who know more about war have the most to say about it. Their talk has value and influence. He declares against war as a method of settling international disputes. He say the Kellogg pact will be the foundation 'of universal peace.

The defense scored another point late yesterday when Judge A R Webber instructed the jury that the officers had a legal right to stop any automobile and search it, without a warrant provided they acted in good faith The fact that the automobile had no liquor would have no bearing, the judge said

The prosecution objected strenuously to this Prosecutor Dow A Baird ending the case of State Senator George H Bender of Cleveland who won a judgment against dry leaders after they had entered his home with a warrant, and found no liquor Senator Bender who has demanded that Checo be punished, was a spectator at the trial

One character witness was introduced by the defense yesterday an acquaintance who testified that Checo was a peace loving friendly man Both side is to be allowed two hours for its final plea to the jury and the case may thus go to the jury late Monday

Democratic Nominee in Ancient Republican Stronghold of Pennsylvania

BY GEORGE R HOLMES
Marion Star Staff Writer

New York N Y, Oct 27 — The fourth and final phase of Gov Al Smith's thrust for the presidency opens today in the ancient Republican stronghold of Pennsylvania

Twelve with its big seaboard problem of farm relief, the border states where the religious and prohibition issues flame brightest, and New England where industrial conditions are possibly worse than anywhere else in the country are now behind him Governor Smith has campaigned them all—and he is confident

He begins his 10 days conquest of the Middle Atlantic state with their hodge-podge of issues, today in a hopeful and assured frame of mind

Some thing is in the air, he told reporters By that he meant that as a veteran campaigner he sensed a trend in His direction It is inconceivable to him he said that the hundreds of thousands of people who have come out to cheer him in the past few days are going to flout their support to mere electors He thinks they will say it with votes on Nov 6 as well

Governor Smith considers that the speech of his opponent Herbert Hoover, at Madison Square Garden last Monday night, is the turning point of the campaign In that speech Mr Hoover characterized Governor Smith's plan on farm relief water power control and prohibition as state socialism

Since last speech, Senator George W Norris, the Nebraskan progressive leader, and Senator Nunn, Bob La Follette, in Wisconsin have indorsed the Smith candidacy

To Governor Smith this progressive support in the west and northwest means Nebraska Wisconsin, North Dakota and possibly Minnesota will go over to his side

In any event the Democratic nominee leaves New York today for his final thrust in the middle Atlantic states — Pennsylvania New Jersey, Maryland and his own New York—hopeful and exceedingly confident For the next 10 days his activities and his speeches will be confined to this quartet of states whose electoral votes total 103

The governor will make his bid for Pennsylvania tonight with a speech in Philadelphia possibly the most consistent Republican city in the entire country He will speak there at the arena tonight after a parade through the city and advance indications are that, however Republican the city may be, it is nevertheless going to give Al a great reception

To veteran politicians the suggestion that a Democratic presidential candidate may carry Pennsylvania brings a broad smile No Democrat has ever carried it in a national election

But, Governor Smith believes he has a chance for the state's 38 electoral votes So do some of his associates as attested by the fact that the Democratic national management has spent considerable sums of money in the state in the past few weeks

The newspapers carry accounts of accidents in every edition.

HALLOWE'EN

IT won't be long 'fore ghosts and witches are extant in the land and the all evening black cats come into their own Answering the ring of the doorbell during the next few days or nights may mean a call from King Solomon and any number of his 600 wives Old King Cole Mother Hubbard or any other one or more of the story book gentry Many folks have been somewhat reluctant this year in donning the festival garment and making the welkin ring with their holiday mirth A few masqueraders have ventured into the business section of the city but they seem to be enroute to some masquerade party and with this fact in mind follow their course pretty closely Reans seem to have the call this season for barking, against winds, panes and frightening the unsuspecting occupants of domicils out of the pro cribal years growth and junk from a few scrap windows Hall we can this year just brings to a close the month of October and precedes All Saints day There are those who remember though, when the man next door didn't treat them coolly for a week all because he got up on November first and found his gate gone the wheels off the one-horse wagon and his cow tied to a fence way on the other side of the town

LOST AND FOUND

DID you ever experience that sort of no ill gonish feeling, that comes with the information that something you had lost had been found when you weren't even aware that you had lost anything? Confessions of embarrassing moments are mine as have feathers at such a time A telephone message from police headquarters one night this week at 1 00 a m from my resting chair and after a hasty resume of my demeanor recently, decided it must be friendly call and visions of the return of the long lost relative with pockets bulging with gold was the mental picture that flashed before my optics In fact all that was needed to complete the picture was a real snowstorm However after being informed that a purse had been found with letters addressed to the owner inside I remembered the stop at the washing machine and the departure from the purse And as the high powered advertising man says there's a reason The story the hands told showed a reduction of about three pounds in avoirdupois and the attendant glee over the news which my eyes beheld thrust all mine thoughts to the four winds and feathers would have felt like cobblestones I felt so light and airy for the remainder of the hour Some folks I am told get their purses back, but not the money, after a dumb Dora stunt of this kind

HAS BEENS

I SEE you have an article of sterling silver carved with the misnomer of berry bowl engraved it out and shine it up for at last it has been given a place among the many and useful gifts If the inventor of this article had only called it a bowl there might have been a different story but since he chose to call it a berry bowl the owner only associates it with a floc of berries The new champion of the berry bowl puts his stamp of approval on it and urges that it be used at every meal for salads vegetables berries fruits nuts and raisins desserts and with a flower holder as a table centerpiece

Beauty and the Million

DRAMATIC STORY OF AMAZING ADVENTURE

BY WILLIAM ALMON WOLFE

CHAPTER FORTY THREE

CASTELLA, systematically, Jim began searched for the last He wasn't excited, he wasn't The issue was too grave

He was curiously cold, lle disaster utter and complete ed him now beside this all r perils he had faced and were as nothing

tter in itself was harmless, e me to him that day on the scovery of Grant and Shes Judge Grant had signed it. It a simple inquiry concerning his rder the terms of the will Jim reminded him he was should be need them to ex- ments the lawyers, on the hand, were required to keep in ch him to be aware of his s and his activities

y by itself without knowledge er facts the letter would give important information But me that if that note came into Jim Blake's hands, he was ruined ead moved heaven and earth to t what a glimpse of that let ll tell him—the name of the lawyer handling Jim's affairs and those of his uncle.

Judge Grant had given promised secrecy he had been unwilling unable, indeed to go further than to say that he would say nothing concerning Jim unless he were asked If questions were asked he must tell the truth—and if Ralph Blake knew that Judge Grant was the executor of the will he would be in Boston asking his fatal questions as well as train or automobile could get him there

All at once he was armed with the knowledge Judge Grant could and would give him Blake's whole position would be transformed He would be able then to go to Hon v Delmar with facts rather than with suspicions he would be able to charge that Jim had from almost the first been only a penniless and unscrupulous adventurer ready to take advantage of the confidence and friendship of the Delmars which he had obtained under the false of false pretenses

How could he explain What could he say even though his motives had been honest and he had stood to win through to success at no actual cost to anyone who had trusted him?

Trowbridge came in while he was searching, for the letter who died in dismay when he heard what had happened

'And you're the man who never keeps a letter' he said Gad—and the one time you do—this happens Now—where could have lost it?

I don't know said Jim I had it in the inside pocket of my coat I was keeping it only till I answered it —I haven't had much time since I got it

Oh that part of it's all right—it's just rotten luck said Trowbridge But in the jam you're in you can't afford bad luck Where have you been —what have you done today

Jim put his mind to answering that question recited finally all his movements

And then he said I ran into a girl and took her to tea—only it turned out to be dinner—

What girl asked Trowbridge

Anyone I know

Do I Does Miss Margaret Lamar of—

Trowbridge jumped

Margaret Lamar he cried How did you come to know her? How did you meet her

Why? Jim laughed Good Lord you don't mean you think she had anything to do with my losing the letter—

I don't know who her I do or don't You answer my question first—then I'll tell you—

Surprised curiously disturbed, Jim stared at him

Why—I—let's see—oh I know' he said I ran into young Renaway Peter Renaway you know, one afternoon and we were both feeling low and we went around—we came to Peter Renaway's rooms and he made us a cocktail Then we talked a while and I went around to his club to have dinner and we ran into a crowd And there was a chap called Lanark—

Blake's cousin

Why—yes it seems to me Peter Renaway did say he was Blake's cousin He's not a bit like Him though

All that long tarred with the same brush said Trowbridge If they lost their money they wouldn't last a month in this town' All right—I ran Lark dined with you did he? What happened then?'

Why—some one suggested going to a show—

Lanark'

I think it was We did anyway and it was hot and we all felt like going on So we got hold of some of the girls in the show—

Lanark's idea

Yes—it was And he suggested going down to Long Beach I took Margaret Lamar in my car'

Trowbridge's whistle of dismay was eloquent

'You've certainly got to hand it to that crowd' he said They never overlook a bet

I don't get you said Jim He was beginning to be indignant Miss Lamar is a charming girl She and I—

Oh, you needn't go on Trowbridge You've got to be good friends, didn't you? You liked her You thought she was quite different from the others?'

I not only thought so—it's true "I guess it is at that That girl's got a head on her shoulders She knows her own mind, I'll tell the world Been seeing much of her since then'

"What else have I had to see much of anybody' No I didn't see her again till late this afternoon—and I ran into her quite by chance when I came to the Plaza We went in to have tea but she looked so tired an early dinner and afterward I took her to the theater

'Did you have that letter with you then'

Yes—and I had it afterward after I'd eaten my own dinner too'

Sure of that' All right—what did you do after dinner'

I—why after a while I went around and met Miss Lamar and took her to supper—and then we walked home to her apartment"

Ah! Did you go in

For a few minutes—yes—

"What happened?'

'Oh look here—I mean I appreciate your interest, and all that I I but you're carrying this too far! I tell you it's all absurd even to think Margaret Lamar could have had anything to do with the loss of that letter!

Maybe so—but I'm not so sure! I don't believe you are either If the truth were known You're protesting too much old thing Come on—what happened This isn't for publication'

Nothing happened I tell you' You —look here you're insulting a girl I'm

Red Cross Membership Goal Is Set at 2,500 in Roll Call to Start Nov. 11

Minimum Fee To Be $1; Larger Contributions Also Necessary To Finance Marion County Chapter's Program for Coming Year

When workers here start the twelfth annual Red Cross roll call Armistice day Nov 11, they will have as their goal 2500 members the quota assigned by the national executive committee of the American Red Cross to the Marion county chapter for the national body's drive for 5,000,000 members during the 1923 roll call according to an announcement made today by Miss Margaret J Dowd secretary of the local chapter

The quota is the same as was set last year for the local group

Plans for the roll call in Marion county are still incomplete, but it is expected that the local chapter will use as its headquarters for the membership drive a store to be rented somewhere close to the center of Marion's business district Miss Dowd said Details of the roll call program will be discussed at a meeting of the Marion county chapter to be held Tuesday night

Variety of Memberships

The full of the 2500 members the chapter aims to enroll will be divided into memberships Miss Dowd stated Life many persons will be asked for The other three types of membership carrying with them fees of $5 $10 and $25

The larger memberships are necessary it was explained for the support of the local work of the chapter inasmuch as 50 cents of each membership fee goes to national headquarters for financing of national and international work From the $1 membership 50 cents goes to national headquarters and 50 cents remains in the local chapter treasury, while from the $5 membership $4 50 remains here The $10 fee will net the chapter $9 50 while $25 memberships will put $24 50 into the local treasury

As many of the larger types of membership will be secured as possible as chapter officers say it is virtually impossible to carry on the local service program from revenues derived from the $1 membership alone

Poster Received

The local Red Cross headquarters has already received one of the roll call posters It is colored in red, green, and brown and shows a Red Cross nurse mothering a child while the four horsemen of the Apocalypse form the background

The first of the Christmas bags sent to American soldiers in foreign lands by the Red Cross every year were received by the local chapter yesterday The Belgian club turned in two bags the first to be received The Christmas bags contain articles of practical value which are difficult to obtain in foreign lands Soap, pocket knives tooth paste, shaving, soap, and similar articles are contained in the bags The two bags handed in are figured cretonne The drawstrings are shoe laces The bags cost approximately $2

Sea Forces Serve Nation's Welfare in Peace as Well as War, Officer Says in Navy Day Message

Marion's Recruiting Captain Reviews Navy's Record of Past Service

TODAY Marion joins with other communities throughout the nation in observance of Navy day The occasion serves not only to emphasize the importance of the navy as a vital factor in the nation's welfare but also honors the memory of Theodore Roosevelt, whose birthday anniversary comes on Oct 27

The local observance is to be staged by Ford McGinnis Post, No 102 of the American Legion, John B Shanks, recruit captain in charge of the local naval recruiting station and Mayor Hazen, who issued a proclamation urging display of the national colors here in observance of the event

Officer Issues Statement

As an appropriate expression of the sentiment embodied in the annual event, Captain Shanks today issued a statement commenting upon the navy's history and its importance to the nation's future His statement follows

"Saturday, Oct 27 has a dual significance to the people of this nation It is the anniversary of the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, one of the greatest friends and supporters the United States navy ever had and has in consequence been selected as Navy day for the purpose of demonstrating to the public the importance of a adequate navy

"On this date the navy acts as host to the public Every ship and station throughout the United States extends a hearty welcome to the public It is hoped that every one who can will take advantage of this opportunity to learn of the navy, its traditions and its missions The navy can render its best service only through the hearty support and co-operation of the people

Record of Service

"The navy has insured our national safety in peace and in war at various times during our history, including 1776 during the Revolutionary war and in 1797 when French menof-war were taking our merchantmen off the seas In two years and a half over 80 had been taken 84 French ships The result was a lessening of the seizures of our merchantmen

In 1801 in the war with Tripoli when the nations of Algiers Tunis, Morocco and Tripoli were demanding large tribute of all the nations of the world to allow merchant ships to carry on their trade after several naval squadrons had been sent over to teach the Barbary states to respect us, a treaty was signed by which the Barbary states to remain at peace with the United States in the future and with out tribute and to surrender all Americans held in the country

"In 1812 in the war with England the navy with a small but efficient force fought with great valor bringing honor to the flag

In 1841 in the Mexican war a United States fleet blockaded the harbor of Vera Cruz and held open the lines of communication between General Scott's army advancing on Mexico City and the United States

The Path of Victory

"Achievements in the Civil war, in 1898 in the Spanish war, the battle of Manila bay, the battle of Santiago, the destruction of the Spanish fleets, constitute added chapters in the navy's glorious record

In 1917 in the World war the navy had a battleship division with the British Grand fleet, destroyers and yachts operating against submarines and protected the convoy for our men in crossing

"Not only does the Navy protect our national peace and safety in time of war, but it is always first on hand in case of a disaster, bringing food, clothing doctors and medical supplies to the helpless victims It has ships on duty in all parts of the world to see that American interests are protected, a fleet in the Asiatic area on the Caribbean sea, and one at the Panama canal on

"The navy is limited in size by international agreement, and can only be kept efficient and ready to protect the interests of this country, by the support of a well informed people knowing what our navy does and what it means to our national peace and safety"

LOOK FOR NEW COACHES

AT least three new faces are expected to appear at the green helms of that many Big Ten conference schools before another season rolls around. That is the latest dope that is going the rounds at the present.

One of the changes is a sure thing, coming at Ohio State where Dr. Wilce has been reigning with a more or less free hand for a number of years. The other two are expected at Iowa and Michigan.

The other seven conference coaches are rather safe for another year, anyhow.

WIEMAN OUT AT MICHIGAN

YOST will probably stick to his directorship at Michigan and will find another man to take Wieman's place as football coach.

Followers of Wolverines are rather dazed at the trend things have taken. Just who has been in charge of football there was not known until the responsibility was placed on Wieman's shoulders. Three straight defeats followed.

Rumors of dissatisfaction among the coaching staff was supposed to be settled with the publication of the following letter:

"Published reports to the effect that there has been an estrangement between us are utterly without foundation. Our association in our common effort to advance the athletic interests of Michigan has been too long and too intimate to be jeopardized by any minor misunderstandings.

"For the handling of the football squad up to Oct. 5, Mr. Yost assumes full responsibility. Since the above date Mr. Wieman has been in charge as head coach.

"There is no disposition on the part of either one of us to dodge or shift responsibility. In spite of the reverses this year, the morale of the squad is splendid. We are entirely sure that there will not be a man representing Michigan who will not fight to his limit in each game.

(Signed) "FIELDING H YOST, "E. W. WIEMAN."

RUMOR IOWA TO MAKE CHANGE

UNLESS Iowa should come through with a very successful season, Bert Ingwersen is definitely through there. Celes for his scalp were raised last year.

No successor has been named for Wilce at Ohio State. There is some talk of Jock Sutherland of Pittsburgh being considered while others say that Willamm has the inside track. The latter course would be merely a continuation of the old Wilce regime so does not look so good.

A FEW COMMON PENALTIES

FOOTBALL fans are said by authorities to lack knowledge of the game. This is perhaps true as there is many complicated plays and rules that come up in every game that only officials, coaches and players understand

For the benefit of readers of this column the common penalties in a game are given below:

Loss of Five Yards—1. Violation of the offside rule, which includes:

(a) Lineman or backs illegally in motion when the ball is snapped.

(b) Any player of the kicking side ahead of the ball when it is kicked at the kickoff.

(c) Interference with opponents before the ball is snapped

2. Unreasonable delay by a team.

3 Running into the kicker after he has kicked the ball.

4. Failure of substitute to report to referee when entering the game.

5. Unfair play not specifically covered in the rules

6. Time called more than three times during a half at the request of the captain of the team.

7. Defensive player holding an offensive player.

8. For each incomplete forward pass during the same series of four downs over the first one. (Only one permitted without penalty).

9. Crawling by the man in possession of the ball.

Loss of 15 yards—1. Substitute communicating with players before the ball is put in play.

2. Interference with a man who has signaled for a fair catch.

3 Throwing player to the ground after he has made a fair catch.

4. Offensive player pushing or pulling the man carrying the ball.

5. Offensive player holding a defensive player. 6. Players of the side making a forward pass interfering with defensive players after the ball is passed. 7 Deliberately roughing the kicker after he has kicked the ball. 1. Piling up on players who are down 9. Tackling a man after he has run out of bounds. 10. Offensive player tripping an opponent. 11. Sideline coaching. 12. Intentional throwing of forward pass to the ground. 13. For bundling. 14 Failure to come to stop in "shift" play.

Loss of 25 yards—1. Clipping. 2. Delay start of first or third periods.

Loss of half distance to goal line. 1. Return of player to the game who has previously been in that same half. 2. Disqualification of a player for rough play. 3. Any foul occurring inside the opponent's one-yard line or behind goal line.

Loss of a down. 1. Illegal or incomplete forward pass. 2. Forward pass striking the ground. 3 Forward pass touched by two eligible players of the passing side. 4 Forward pass going out of bounds on the fly. 5. Recovery of blocked kick by kicking side, regardless of which side blocked it. 6. Interference by side making forward pass prior to fourth down.

Loss of ball. 1. Ball kicked out of bounds unless touched in the field of play. 2 Illegal use of hands or arms to prevent an opponent from securing loose ball. 3. Forward pass touched by ineligible player of the passers side 4. Interference by defensive side under a forward pass. 5. Failure to advance the ball 10 yards in four downs. 6. Kicking at a loose ball. 7. Player on the kicking side who is ahead of the ball when it is kicked and touches the ball before it touches an opponent.

Forfeiture of game. Refusal to abide by referee's decision or to play within two minutes after being ordered to do so by the referee.

Dunn Rated As Greatest Developer of New Talent

By FRANK G. MENKE

JACK DUNN has gone from this earth.

The greatest developer of youthful talent in all baseball history has passed on to join his fathers. But his memory will live on and on, because Dunn was the supersalesman of minor league players.

In all his years he "outsmarted" himself but once. That was nearly 10 years ago when he refused to sell Joe Boley, the shortstop, to Brooklyn for $100,000 only to dispose of Boley a few seasons afterward to the Athletics for $50,000.

But Dunn ever maintained—and probably he was correct—that it was the wisest move of his career not to sell Boley to the Dodgers.

"I'll tell you why," he once explained. "Boley was a great player and his greatness lay beyond his mere mechanical ability. He had almost a hypnotist's knack of getting young players under his spell and developing them.

"Boley was a natural leader—and an unselfconscious one. I could put almost any kid at second, third or first, with Boley at short and Joe would inspire green kids into near stardom. So, you see, if I had let him go when the Dodgers wanted him I would have lost the man who helped me tremendously in developing the youngsters I later sold for big money."

Dunn once was a major leaguer. When his playing days were over, he moved to Baltimore and operated the Orioles franchise in the International league. While browsing around for talent his attention was called to a big, powerful youngster who was starring as a pitcher-hitter and it was but a half step to the power of Babe Ruth, playing school baseball.

Dunn moved up the youth, taught him a few tricks, corrected a few faults and, a few seasons later, sold him to the Boston Red Sox for $50,000 which club, in time, turned him over to the Yanks for $125,000.

Dunn won seven days in succession—all of them with material that he developed. Naturally, his sensational success in the minors brought him many offers from major league magnates who wanted him to pilot their craft.

But Dunn refused. And why not? His club was prospering with gate receipts and he also could count upon close to $100,000 per year from the sale of his athletes. So he remained a minor league chieftain to the end of his days and upon his tombstone can be written:

"Jack Dunn, whose minor league leadership and whose development of young players shall remain forever as accomplishments by which all others are judged."

La Rue Gridders Win League Contest

MECHANICSBURG IS DEFEATED BY OWN PASS ATTACKS, 20-6

Strength of Marion County School's Line Features Game

LARUE high gridders stepped out yesterday afternoon on their home lot to win their first Heart of Ohio league game in three attempts by defeating Mechanicsburg, 20 to 6.

Two intercepted forward passes paved the way for the LaRue victory. In the second quarter Greenwood shared one of Mechanicsburg's passes and trotted 65 yards for a touchdown. Running 50 yards and placing the ball on the three yard line for Metz to buck across, Longfellow pulled the other long dash in the third period.

Driving off tackle in the first period, M. Allen scored the Marion county school's first score.

Covering a blocked punt behind the LaRue goal line, Kelly scored Mechanicsburg's only counter of the game.

LaRue combined a strong line attack with a passing game to win the contest. In the first half Mechanicsburg used passes successfully but were only able to score one first down in the last half.

The main feature of the game was the strength of the LaRue line. Price and Wilcox starred in this section of the game.

In five games played this season the Marion county gridders have won three and lost one. The other was a scoreless tie with Richwood. Their goal line has been crossed but twice while they have scored 71 points against their opponents.

Other Heart of Ohio league scores reported to E. D. Maurice, secretary, were: Woodstock 7, DeGraff 0; Richwood 37, Plain City 7.

FAILS TO SET MARK

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 27—Spencer, the sensational New York colt, made another effort to break the world three-year-old trotting record of 1:59¾ which he jointly holds with Mr. McElwyn, 1:59¾, at the Grand Circuit track here, but could travel in only 2:01. He was driven by W. H Lease.

It is admirable, the dignity with which some men maintain a bare existence

TRY AGAIN

Team Scores First Touchdown in Three Seasons

ALFRED, N. Y., Oct. 27—The old saw about "try try again" proved its worth when the Alfred college football team scored a touchdown after three years of effort. Not only that. Alfred actually won, 6 to 2. The boys had to dig up an extra inning as Edinboro college to break their streak, and the unknowns proved tough picking.

HARMON TO OFFER CHEAPER BATTLES

Two Fights Each Week Slated in Chicago Stadium

Chicago, Oct. 27—Time rolls fast and it will be but a few short weeks when Chicago will open its Chicago stadium with a 23,000 seating capacity. President Paddy Harmon plans a revelation for the fight game in these parts. To begin with he will inaugurate a 50 cent to $5 boxing show and stage two a week. He will of course stage championship bouts in his new arena with $7 tops, but his chief plan is to put boxing on a scale whereby every one interested in the manly art of self defense can pay the price.

Harmon believes the lad who can afford but 50 cents is as important to the fight game as the man who can lay down $5 with a smile. Already Harmon has opened a school of boxing for the prospective fighter. He has engaged Tommy White in his day the best 126 pounder and each day some 50 to 200 boys are taught the manly art of self defense. White contends that he can build the beginner into fighters of the old school, the kid who will feint, roll his head, throw the full force of his body into the punch or go back with his body so that if he should be hit, he can go away with the punch.

BY JOHN W. HEISMAN

AN intersectional game of football in New York City in 1921. The "Golden Tornado" of Atlanta, Ga., has come North to do battle with the Nittany Lions of Penn State. It looks like a very even proposition, but many think the southerners will win out in the end.

There's plenty of nervousness on both sides over the encounter. Georgia Tech kicks off to start the game and the ball goes to the very worst man—for Georgia—on the State team—Killinger. He gathers it in and, without a glance over the field, starts forward at express speed straight up the middle. The "Yellow Jackets" bear down on him and several get mighty close to him, but by a lightning leap from behind one interferer is another he manages to give them the slip.

"BILL" KILLINGER

Star halfback at Penn State 1919-1921 who overcame early physical drawbacks and made himself a synthetic athlete and a football player feared by opposing teams.

SUDDENLY the runner swings sharply toward th right boundary, a right angle swerve that makes one wonder how he keeps his feet. Then, just as swiftly he swerves upstream again, for his falcon eye has spotted two Tech men coming down in diverging lines. One Tech tackler trying to turn with him slips and falls flat, another is bumped off by the interference while a third is cross stepped by "Killy."

However, some five others are still after him and it looks as though he surely will be nabbed, but by a magnificent burst of speed he puts daylight between himself and all of them and spurts one while thru after another until he has traveled 90 yards to a touchdown. Remember, it's the first play of the game. This overwhelming catastrophe sends Georgia Tech plummeting high, as it would almost any team and they are unable to gather themselves together at any time in the game; they lose by an uncomfortable score.

WELL, that was about the way Killinger jumped into all his football games. He had the same kind of a "pick up" on all his runs, too—got under full headway quicker, you could but your eye. On cinder tracks many men can go pretty fast in track suits but put a heavy football uniform on them and cumbersome shoes with cleats on their feet and they don't look so much for speed. But Killinger fairly flew in any kind of togs. He sparkled and scintillated; he started fast, kept going faster and then, when pressed, showed you just how much faster a man could go when he really had to.

But Killinger was not a born athlete. Even at the time he left prep school he was still small, weak, anemic—not even rugged enough to make his high school team, Hereafter, he was ambitious and he worked and trained and toiled and strived to learn how to be an athlete. He made himself a synthetic star. Certainly he deserved enormous credit thus to build himself up.

IF you will glance at the list of things athletic Killinger has accomplished, and those he still is doing, you will see how far man can come from small beginnings. It takes "sand" to do that.

It's great to be a wonderful born athlete but it's much greater to start from nowhere and climb unaided. "Killy" was a self-made Athlete—that's the point worth dwelling on more than the number of long runs he made—and he made a lot of them.

It is easy for a rich old man to say that youth is enough for a young man.

MARION GRIDDERS EXPECT HARD FIGHT FROM MT. GILEAD

Contest Scheduled on Local Field at 2:30 O'Clock Sunday Afternoon

MARION'S team of pro gridders is anticipating a tough battle at the fairgrounds field Sunday afternoon when they meet the Mt. Gilead Eagles team at 2:30 o'clock.

The contest will be the only home sporting event over the week-end, Hardly high being scheduled to play at Marion this afternoon.

The A. C.'s have been through three hard contests this season. Although they have failed to pull through with wins, they have gained a world of experience and are in good condition.

Mt. Gilead's lineup will include many stars. At center will be Pinyard of Wisconsin; Clark of Lake Forest, McFadden and Murray of the Ohio U., Cash of Denison, and Purnell of Wesleyan will also appear.

To counteract this array of stars, the Marion eleven has been seat through hard practices the past week. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

In Marion's lineup will appear: Wagner and Irvin at ends, Graham and Johnson at tackles, Long Time Sleep and Whiteman at guards, Smith at center, Shatto, quarter; Brooks Shire and Anthony, halves; Lashey, full.

WHITE GETS HORSE

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 27—Ruth M. Chennault, champion two-year-old trotter of 1928, has been turned over to Ben F. White, noted Grand Circuit trainer, to prep for the 1929 season. She was not raced this year. Ruth M. Chennault is owned by G. R. Shafer of Chicago, who has the Coldstream Farm here.

Once a man gets a seat behind a post at the theater, he is well "posted" enough never to allow that seat to be sold to him again.

LOCAL RESIDENTS INSPECT ZEPPELIN

and Mrs Frederick Zachman See Graf Under Construction

A Marion residents naturally greatly disappointed when conditions prevented the Zeppelin from making a flight over this section of the country especially great was the disappointment of Mr and Mrs. Frederick Zachman 356 East Center To them a view of the giant airship would be the seeing and realization They saw the Graf Zeppelin a Germany while it was under construction

The summer where on a three and a half months tour of Germany and nearby countries Mr and Mrs Zachman were guests in Friedrichshafen Germany one of the cities on which the Zachmanns are located and interest in the Graf Zeppelin there been built and the day previous had attempted to get close enough to the giant airship for an inspection

Their host had special privileges and the two Marion residents were taken on an inspection tour of the ship No one was allowed inside the liner but they were privileged to stand on the platform built around the ship and were given minute details regarding its construction Mr Zachman has a souvenir strip of the aluminum which was used in its frame

Mrs. Zachman was most interested in the rooms of the ship She saw the parlor library smoking room bedrooms dining room ladies room and kitchen all complete from the smallest detail to the beautiful wall paper covering the walls The rooms were finished in the same manner as those of large ocean liners

At the time they saw the ship it was complete except for the outer skin upon which more than 50 men were working The airship impressed Mrs Zachman as having the appearance of a big silver cigar

On Mr and Mrs. Zachmann's return trip the ship they were riding in was in the same storm that ripped the progress of the Graf Zeppelin The storm raged so furiously for a while that several times the dishes all from the tables at the rocking of the boat and several people were injured from falls

Report Good Gain in Industrial Activity, Production

SAY FRIDAY SLUMP ONLY "BEAR RAID"

Upward Movement in Rails Resumed; Other Leaders in Comeback

TIGHTER MONEY SEEN

William C. Durant Forecasts Price of 300 for General Motors

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Industrial stocks strong, railroad stocks strong, domestic bonds steady, foreign bonds in active, curb market stocks firm, cotton steady, grain steady, oil firm, copper strong, rubber steady, sugar steady, pig iron firm and foreign exchange irregular.

BY W. S. COUSINS
Marion Star Staff Writer

New York, Oct. 27—The sharp rise in the industrial stock leaders at the beginning of trading today convinced Wall Street that Friday's closing slump was principally the result of a well timed bear raid, with its opening up of stop-loss orders in an avalanche of selling. The steel stocks and the motors, with a few of the high priced specialties, were the leaders in the aggressive come back of prices, which ranged from a point to eight points. The upward movement was resumed in the rails with St. Louis and southwestern racing up seven points to 122 in active trading.

The "big bulls" in Wall Street were not adverse to broadcasting their views on the stock market Rejoicing in fine fettle from Europe, William C. Durant forecast a price of 300 for General Motors, with a 2½-for-1 as the most likely split up for the stock when the directors meet on Nov. 12. General Motors rallied about four points to 219¼ in the first hour and Chrysler regained about three points of its lost ground.

Most of the week-end banking and economic reviews reported a good gain in industrial activity and production, though retail trade was retarded in some places by the weather. Bankers forecast a tighter money situation next week, due to the preparation for heavy Nov. 1 financing of interest and dividend payments, but most of the funds so accumulated will return to the banks by the end of the week.

$36,000 INCREASE

An increase of more than $36,000 over bank clearings for a week ago Friday was reported by clearing headquarters in the Marion National bank today showing clearings for yesterday amounting to $87,937.95. Clearings for a week ago Friday totalled $51,289.54.

BEING the Republican nominee for Sheriff, I invite the voters if interested, to thoroughly investigate my record as a citizen. If I have been strictly honest, sober, industrious and possess business qualifications, have a record above reproach, have applied the Golden Rule from all angles, I earnestly solicit your support. I promise, if elected, to practice strict economy, as taxes are much too high and can be reduced to a great extent by county officials practicing economy. I promise to be governed strictly by my oath of office and render to the people of Marion County strict enforcement of the law. Remember, to me an oath of office is as sacred as a marriage vow. I guarantee and promise to render clean service and never betray the public's confidence, and, if elected, to lead a life that your posterity may emulate. Please remember, I have promised no deputyship. If elected, some sober, honest, industrious, deserving citizen will be considered. I thank you for courtesies extended.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Nutting time is here and almost all of the many different varieties of nuts appeared almost simultaneously upon local produce markets today. In all seven kinds of nuts may now be obtained from local retailers in the shell and hulled.

Hazelnuts are selling at 30 cents a pound, hickory nuts at two pounds for 15 cents, New England chestnuts at 30 cents a pound, Brazil nuts at 35 cents a pound, almonds, unshelled, at 35 cents a pound, and black American walnuts at two pounds for 15 cents.

Although crops of nuts are reported to be small in Ohio, they are plentiful in almost every other section of the country, retailers stated here this morning. Nuts are also very good this year, being large and meaty.

A new arrival that is practically a stranger to local housewives came onto the markets of the city this morning. It is the oyster plant. The oyster plant has the shape of a carrot, the color of a white turnip, and a top like a bullrush. It tastes like an oyster when put in soup. Oyster plants are selling at two bunches for 15 cents.

One price change was reported in the more standard products on the markets of the city today. Jersey sweet potatoes fell in price. The former notation was three pounds for 25 cents, the present is four pounds for 25 cents.

Two new grades of the standard products also arrived here today. A lower grade of date may now be purchased at two pounds for 25 cents. A very low grade grapefruit which is almost entirely pulp and contains very little juice may now be obtained here at four for 25 cents.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, Oct. 27—Trade in wheat was rather light in volume but market showed a firm undertone. The finish was with net gains of ¾@1c. Corn was poorly supported and lost all of its earlier advance with closing levels ruling unchanged to ½c lower. Oats were ¼@¾c lower and rye was ¾@⅝c higher. Lard finished 7½@12½c lower; ribs were 5@15c lower and bellies nominally unchanged.

More activity prevailed in exporting circles and reshaped placed wheat sales in all positions at 1,250,000 bu. wheat, mostly Manitoba and 400,000 bu corn. Country offerings of corn to arrive were smaller, only 47,000 bu. new crop being booked for prompt shipment. Domestic shipping sales were 1,000 bu wheat, 50,000 bu corn, 38,000 bu, oats and 1,000 bu barley.

Wheat was again higher throughout the session, though best prices were not maintained to the finish. Short covering and buying by several of the commission concerns based on strength in Liverpool and Winnipeg and a further inquiry for gulf winters for continental account acted as firming factors. There also was buying against sales of corn placed to the account of a local professional.

On the advance in prices, moderate profit taking and sales by holders of privileges served to force a reaction of more than ½c from top. Local arrivals were 111 cars. Minneapolis stocks increased 2,650,000 bu for the week. Canadian marketings totaled 7,528,000 bu. Bradstreet's clearances were placed at 11,310,000 bu, compared with 13,370,000 bu last year.

Corn showed early strength, only to develop weakness later when selling against purchases of wheat set in. Additional depressing factors were the increased arrivals of 105 cars and the break of 3@7c in cash premiums on the old crop and 2@3c on the new. The opening bulge was caused by prospects of unsettled weather over the belt and buying of March by houses with export connections.

Broomhall claims that foreign interests are more eager after United States corn, as the Argentine grain now is out of line. Bradstreet's weekly clearances totaled only 43,000 bu, compared with 10,000 bu a year ago. Liverpool spot corn closed unchanged to ½c higher.

Oats met with a little buying by commission houses, March being taken by houses with country connections. Prices ruled a shade lower with corn. Receipts were 43 cars.

Price action in provisions was lower. Market was affected by local selling pressure. On the break houses with foreign connections picked up a few lots of lard. Cash trade remains slow. Hog arrivals were 23,000, and western points had 33,300, against 64,300 last year.

Cotton

New York, Oct. 27—Cotton received 3 to 6 points at the opening today. December sold at 19.15C, January 19.13C, March 19.11C, May 19.02C and July 18.88C.

Schebler Carburetors

YOU CAN'T SEE EXACT CARBURETION

Of course, you can't see such a thing as exact carburetion. You can't examine it or test it understandingly in any way except to equip with a Schebler model "S" an automobile with whose performance you are thoroughly familiar. Then you can sure feel the difference it makes.

This design also completely cures the curse of hard starting with a cold motor by eliminating a "choke valve" and providing for a mixture of gasoline and air, enriched by the use of the dash control just enough to be highly explosive in a cold engine.

Put a Schebler Model "S" through a real road test and you feel the difference to which the speedometer and gas gauge testify. The more accurately you measure the road results in all weather conditions the more outstanding is the superiority of performance which a Schebler gives.

A TEST IS THE BEST

FORMAL VETO IS FILED BY MAYOR

Agreement Between Kenton Council and Big Four Disapproved by Executive

ASKS AMPLE PROTECTION

Says Contract Does Not Sufficiently Safeguard City and Citizens

Kenton, Oct 27—Formal veto of the agreement entered into by the City council and the Big Four railroad company on Oct 16 relative to the double tracking project of the railroad through Kenton was filed in city council Friday by Mayor W J Ochs Friday marked the expiration of the 10 day period allowed for executive action

Under terms of the agreement passed by council with one dissenting vote and one member not voting the carrier grants the city certain concessions for the continued use of a strip of land known as Scioto avenue for railroad purposes The ordinance which the carrier sought to convert into a second main line and which was opposed for many weeks through injunction proceedings is located on this strip

Stipulation Irregular

For granting usage of this and the carrier gives the city $ 1 000 to be used as it sees fit also the right to pass roadways beneath the Big Four trestle over the Scioto river should the city desire to build a roadway connecting, Detroit and Leighton and agrees to establish protection at Big Four grade crossings in the city

In disapproving the agreement, Mayor Ochs sets forth that the written contract does not sufficiently safeguard the city as well as the citizens owning property abutting on both sides of said strip of land and that in his opinion the cash stipulation is irregular

All the city wants and is asking for the mayor said in his veto message is ample crossing protection and to hold the city harmless from any obligation if at any time the grade crossings are eliminated or elevated tracks

Mayor Votes No

At the time the agreement was presented for action both Mayor Ochs and Solicitor Carter W Scheerer advised that council defer vote until after the contract could be carefully gone over The legislature however, proceeded with the voting passing the agreement A three fourths vote will be necessary to repass the agreement over the veto
